

Introduction: Let me tell you about myself. I am your teacher and I love children. What about you? How well do you know your colleagues? Today we will learn new things and with the help of the game "Tell you about me" we will discover things we didn't know about our colleagues. Conclusions and recommendations

The theme is broad and can include many activities that are beneficial for self-discovery and getting to know others: name, age, city, country, colours, toys and favourite foods. Involve children in various activities of this kind to help them learn about themselves. So you can involve children in:

- games
- songs
- stories

The discussions are particularly important because they strike the right balance between digital and traditional.

As recommendations, observe and check each child when they are involved in activities.

Focus on children's needs and help them to self-correct. Make sure they feel comfortable and enjoy their success.
